The impact of Covid-19 on British society

1. The continuing impact of Covid-19

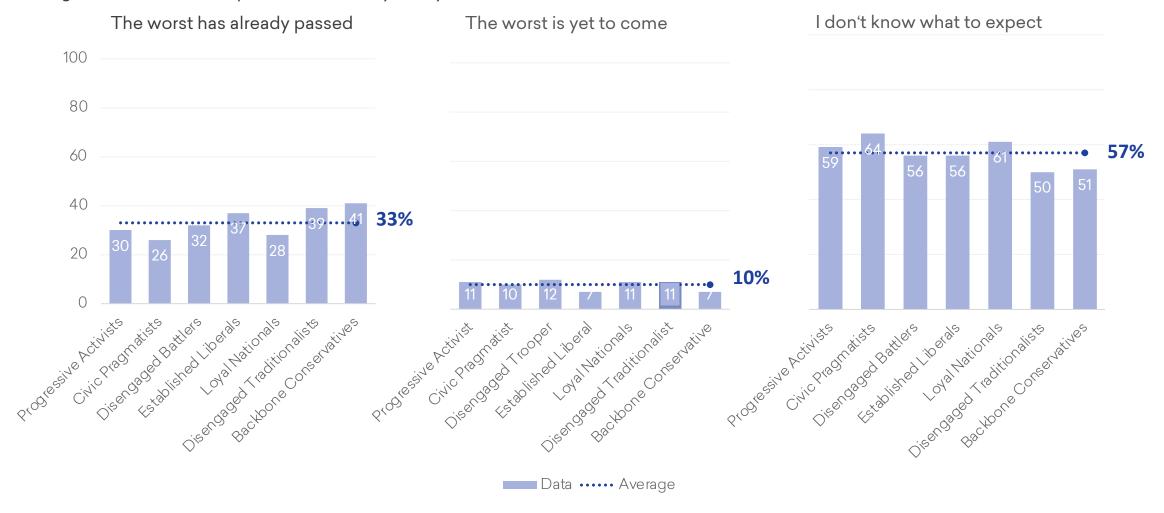

Have we seen the worst of Covid yet?

Most Britons are unsure what to expect when it comes to the pandemic

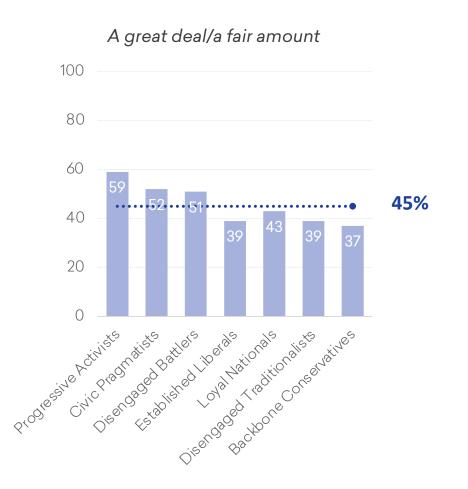

Thinking about the Covid-19 pandemic, would you say....

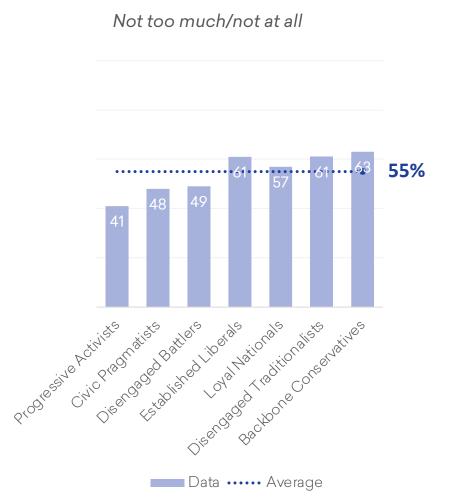

Impact of Covid-19 on day-to-day life?

Britons are fairly evenly divided over how much Covid-19 still affects their day to day life – but more feel Covid-19 doesn't effect their lives much now, than those who do

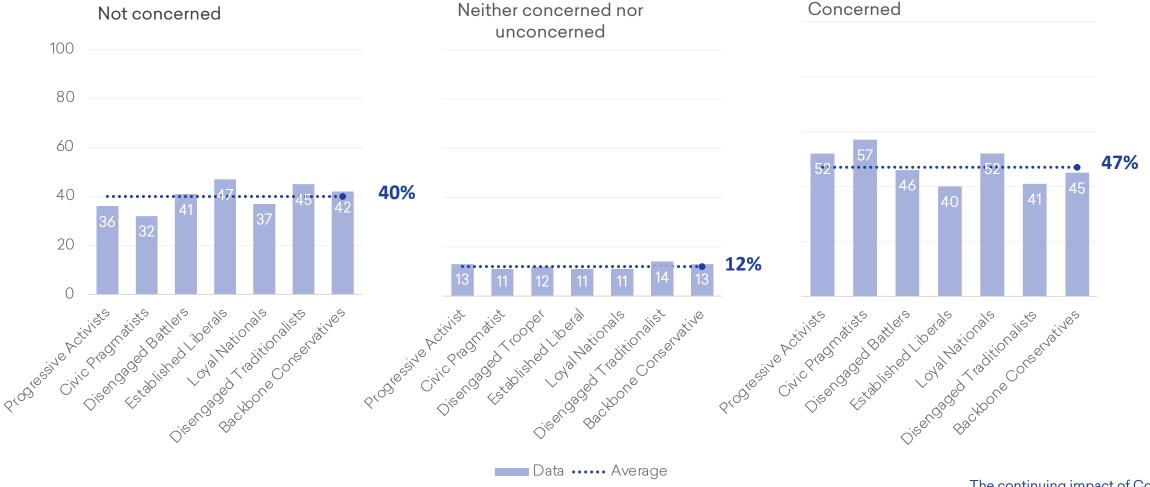

Concern about contracting Covid-19

Britons are more likely to be concerned than not of catching Covid-19

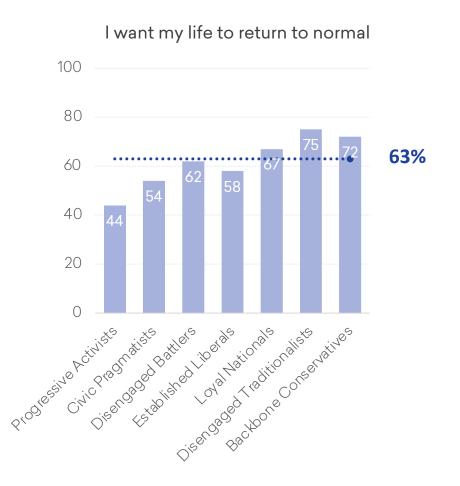

How concerned are you personally about contracting Covid-19?

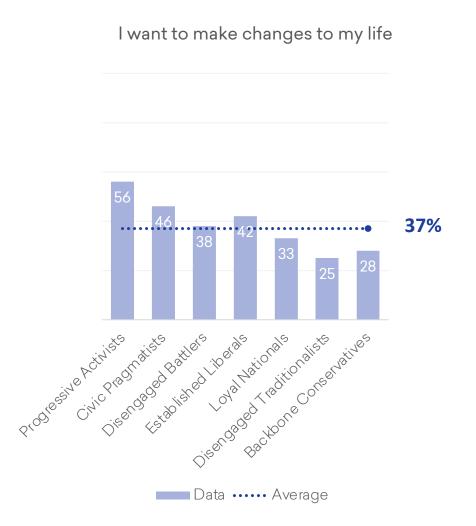

Post-Covid – normality v change

Most Britons want things to return to normal in their own lives

When we emerge from the pandemic, which better describes what you want for your life? 6

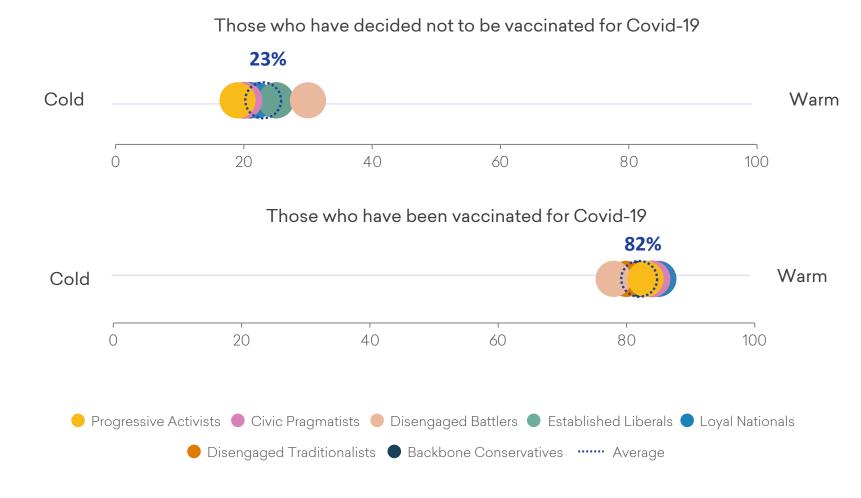

2. Perceptions of the vaccinated and unvaccinated

Feelings thermometer of vaccinated vs unvaccinated

Britons feel warmth towards the vaccinated, and coldness towards the unvaccinated

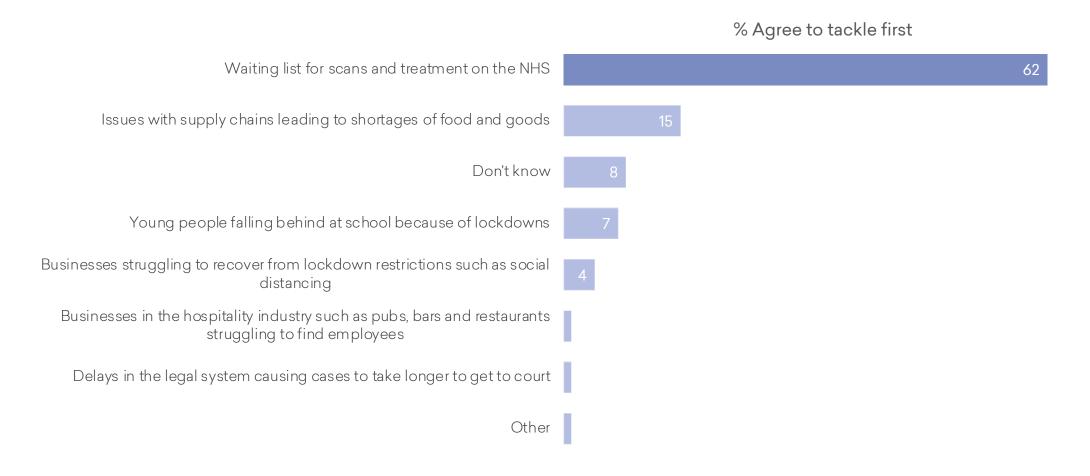

3. Post-Covid priorities

What backlog the government should tackle first?

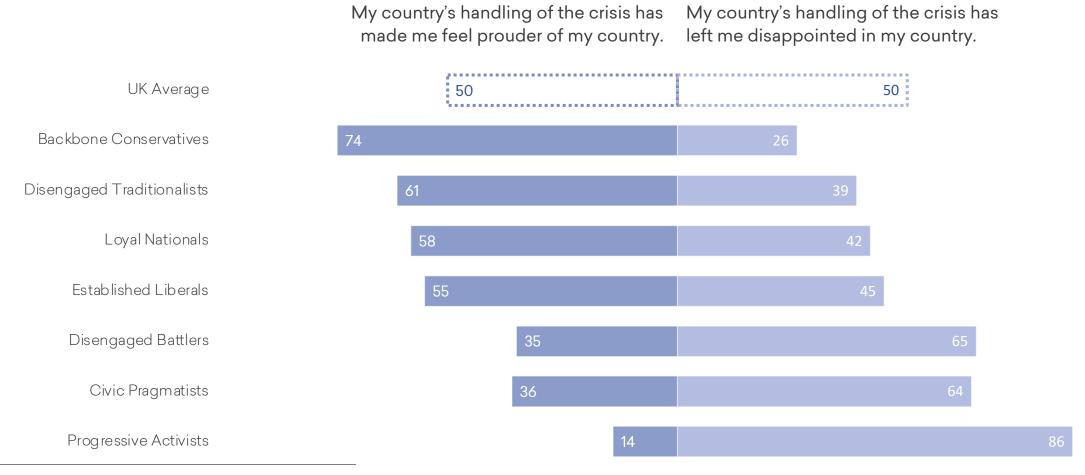

Almost two thirds of Britons want the government to tackle NHS waiting lists as the top priority

Covid-19: proud or disappointed?

Britons are evenly divided into proud/disappointed on the country's handling of the pandemic, but the differences between segments are stark

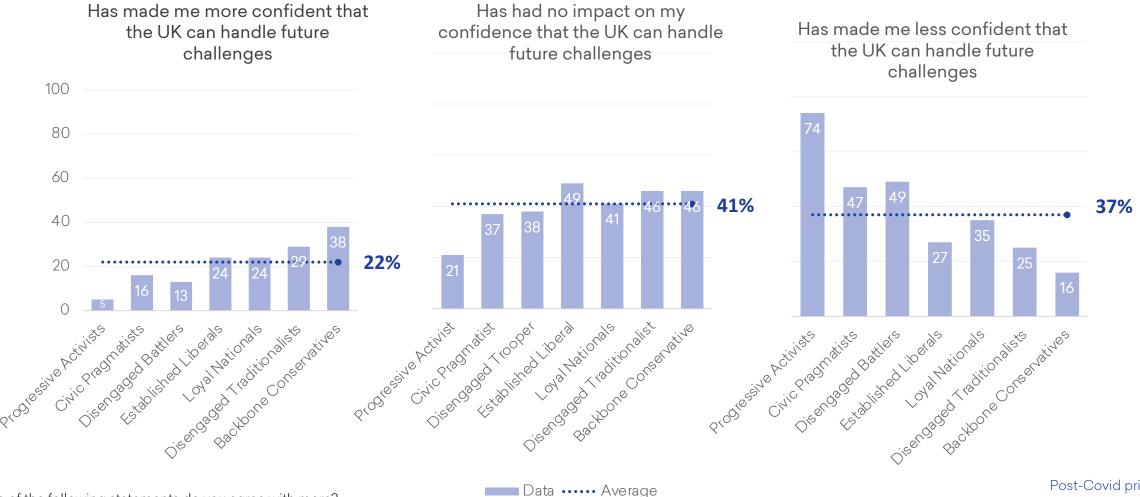

Can we handle future challenges?

Few Britons are more confident that we can handle future challenges better as a result of Covid

About More in Common

More in Common is an international initiative set up in 2017 to build societies that are stronger, more united, and more resilient to the increasing threats of polarization and social division.

We work with a wide range of groups in civil society, politics, government, business, faith, education, philanthropy and the media to connect people across lines of division.

More in Common's teams in France, Germany, the United Kingdom and the United States work together and share a commitment to advancing our mission.
